

We're looking for an experienced Physical Therapist who wants more than a traditional outpatient role.

At our clinic, care is built around relationships, community impact, and helping people stay active across the lifespan. We work with active adults, runners, and older adults with a strong focus on prevention, wellness, and individualized treatment.

And yes — you'll probably be greeted by Rookie, our therapy dog, who reminds us every day that creating a welcoming, human-centered environment matters just as much as clinical expertise.

This is a great opportunity for a clinician who values:

- Clinical autonomy
- Quality patient care over volume
- Community engagement and program development
- Collaborative culture
- Opportunities to grow specialty interests

We believe PT can play a larger role in keeping communities healthy, active, and connected — and we're building programs that reflect that vision.

If you're looking for a practice environment where your experience, ideas, and clinical reasoning are valued, we'd love to connect.

Interested in meeting Rookie (and the rest of our outstanding team)? Send your resume in an email to denise.smith@smithptplus.com with the subject line "I like dogs."
